A VISIT TO THE PEANUT MILL

(By Mary Lou Helms.)

Our Science teacher, Mrs. Jones, gave the Junior II. class a surprise Wednesday morning by taking us on a visit to the peanut mill in New Brockton.

When we arrived, Mr. Murphree the manager, carried us through it. The first thing that met our gaze was a large red warehouse, in which peanuts were stored. The peanuts were carried from the warehouse to the shaker by an elevator. Over this elevator is a little signal bell. When the man at the shaker needs peanuts he pulls a cord and the bell sounds. At the sound he gets more peanuts at once. After they leave the shaker, where the trash is shaken out, they go to the sheller. Here the peanuts are shelled and the hulls are forced up a pipe by air. After they have been shelled, they go to the bin and from the bin to the pickers room. Here the ladies pick the trash and small pieces of hulls out of them as the peanuts go along a band.

After they have been picked, they go to another shaker, where they are separated as number one and number two. Number ones are the whole peanuts and number twos are the broken ones. Number ones are used to make peanut butter and number ones are shipped. After they leave there, they are carried to the peanut butter mill. Here they are put in a large machine and ground up and mixed. Then they go to a cooler, where they are cooled. After they have been cooled they are carried up an elevator to the blancher, where all the skins are removed. Here they are ground again in the mill and all occayed ones are out.

In making the peanut butter the peanuts are mixed with two-thirds numbers and one-third Spanish. In case this isn't done the peanut butter will be too oily. When they are picked they are carried up another elevator to the warehouse. Here they are ground into butter. Salt is added. Then it is put in cans and the cans are put in a label. While we were in the peanut buttter mill our nostrils were filled with the delicious aroma of good parched peanuts and peanut butter.

The last thing we visited was the operating room. It contained a large fire-tube boiler. I can truly say that we were impressed with it and I wish we could go all through it again.

WISE-GRIFFIS

A marriage which will be of interest to their friends was that of Miss Sara Wise and Mr. John Griffis, Cecil Wise of Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan. The wedding took place in a single ring ceremony Saturday afternoon, February 25, with Mr. T. D. Kendrick performing the service.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Griffis and is a graduate of the Elba high school. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wise of Samson and has many friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Wise will make their home in Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, where the groom is stationed with the U. S. Coast Guard Service.

McARTHUR-WISE

Miss Jeannette McArthur and Mr. Johnnie B. Wise were united in marriage Wednesday, February 25. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. McArthur of Bonoroi, Fla., and a sister of Mrs. Luther Vaughan of this city. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wise, who reside on the Elba-Victoria highway.

The newlyweds will reside on the Wise homestead. The bride visited her sister, Mrs. Vaughan, for a week or so, returning home a few days prior to her marriage.

Miss Louise Morgan spent two days last week with Miss Elinor Lewis at Woman's College in Montgomery.

Mrs. F. J. Mizell and Mrs. Tom Brock of Samson visited friends and relatives in Elba Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Marley of Brundidge were guests during the week-end of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Marley.

About People and Things
By C. B. McDowell

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS—Messrs. Julian Hall, editor of The Dothan Eagle, DeWitt Thomas, editor of The Wiregrass Journal, and Lawrence Oakley made an appreciated call at The Clipper office Tuesday afternoon. They are ardent supporters of Frank Dixon for governor. They came to Elba to hear their favorite gubernatorial candidate deliver an address, erroneously announced by the State press for 1:30 Tuesday afternoon. The Dixon party only lingered in Elba for a short while and all announcement was made that Mr. Dixon would speak here at some later date.

M-CORD SUPPORTER—My old friend, Bob Vail, editor of The Batiwin Times, of Bay Minette, called at my home last Thursday night in quest of dope on the gubernatorial race. The genial Bob is touring the State in the interest of Hon. Leon McCord and he slipped me the confidential tip that the noted jurist and Bible teacher is very much in the race and is gaining ground rapidly. He says that the race is between McCord and Graves, with Dixon in the also-ran class.

GOING STRONG—Since their ignominious defeat about two weeks ago at the hands of the Golden quintet, the Kinston "Blue Devils" have been seeing red and have been making a clean sweep in all competition, winning all four of their games, as follows: Laurel 30-22, Opp 34-19, Elba 36-19, Ariton, 32-12, and Monday night they won from the hitherto undefeated Straughn team by a 19-14 score. In commenting on the Straughn team, R. E. Williams, probable for post office, stated that they are the biggest high school boys he ever saw.

The Kinston basketeers, under the able coaching of Houghton Ben Larkins, has but only one game to play. They are entering the district tournament at Clayton on Friday and are favorites to win.

QUICK ACTION—Tobe Rhodes may have a corner on high-priced sweet potatoes, but Mrs. Ed Smith Avenue's crack gardener, comes to the front this week with an Irish potato tale that is worthy of mention. He reports that he planted his potato patch last Friday and his wife cooked a mess of new potatoes from them the same day. Mr. Harper had Mrs. R. G. Hutchison as a witness, who corroborated the fact, so it must have been true.

SIGNS WORKING—The pesky ground hog and Ernest Owen's squirrel hide signs are working overtime and the combination is likely to bring out some of the roughest February weather this section has experienced for several months. High winds blew clouds of dust that made Sunday a decidedly uncomfortable day. An electrical storm that might was accompanied by a heavy rain, which was followed by a decided drop in temperature, falling from the 70's Sunday to the freezing by daybreak Monday morning. The wind blew cold all day Monday and Tuesday morning was one of the coldest of the winter. The weather was so cold Monday night that Tobe Rhodes was forced to remain in the store all night in Opp. When he arrived home Tuesday morning he was found up in an overcoat seven sizes too large for him. Mrs. Rhodes was too modest to ask her husband where he spent the night or where he got his commodious protection from the frigid atmosphere.

MACBETH—Now that old Silas Smidge from Turnip Ridge has come and gone, and he it said to have left behind many heaps of fun and hilarity, lovers of high class drama are looking forward to Shakespeare's famous play, "Macbeth," presented by John Forrest and a strong cast, on Friday, March 2nd. This is said to be the first Shakespearean play to be shown in Elba. It is to be staged under the auspices of the Athletic Association.

LIZZIE HEARD FROM—Not to be outdone by her more stylish and modern sisters, old "Tin Lizzie" forged to the front and took her place in the killing parade by kicking her radius rods loose Sunday night and crashing bodily in to a concrete post, west of town on the Elba-Opp highway. A colored woman was instantly killed, her husband, Rev. Jasper Lee, was critically injured and a negro child was painfully cut and bruised. She may be bringing up the rear, but Sunday night's accident reminds us that when old Lizzie goes on a rampage and kicks loose her radius rods, etc., she is still a dangerous animal.

COLD AND HOT—The levee situation has been enough to try the souls of our citizens. Ever since the order came from Washington directing all trucks and mules to be taken off the job, reports have been coming to us one after the other. First we read in the daily press that there is no money available for truck and mule hire, then a message came from Congressman Steagall that the work is to continue. Next we read in Tuesday's papers that State Director Holt states that no money is available. Then, Tuesday afternoon, telegrams were received by Mayor J. O. English from Senator Bankhead and Congressman Steagall that mule and truck hire for the Elba levee would be allowed under the class of labor and that the work would go on to completion. It is to be hoped that no more discouraging reports will be received in the game of "hot and cold and then hot again."

PEANUT MILL—The Elba peanut mill started shelling peanuts Tuesday and is giving employment to a considerable number of people. Now that a large part of the CWA work has been discontinued, with the exception of work on the levee, private enterprises that furnish employment will be more appreciated than has been the case for the past few months. The peanut mill operated for a few days last October, but has been shut down since that time until Tuesday. Peanuts are now bringing more than double the prices that obtained a year ago.

MISS DORIS WHITMAN HOSTESS TO W.H.A.T. CLUB—

Miss Doris Whitman entertained the W. H. A. T. Club at her home Saturday evening. Several progressions of bridge were enjoyed by the club members and the following: C. A. Jones, Kathleen Hall and Billie Lamb, of Troy, who were guests of Louise Morgan; Mary Moseley of New Brockton, guest of Mrs. Gordon Conner; Louise Crowder and Hilda Stephens, who are honorary club members.

After the games Miss Whitman served delightful ices to the club guests, where they were served refreshments.

CORRECTION

In the article in last week's paper about the birthday party for Mr. F. H. Murphree, the composition made the grievous mistake of setting it up so that it read Mrs. Murphree was given the party, and that she entertained herself. We are sorry this mistake occurred. The party was given as a surprise to Mr. Murphree in celebration of his birthday, and his guests were members of the Elba Board of Commerce.

CHARLES CLARK IS HOST TO SUNBEAM BAND—

The Sunbeam Band met at the home of Charles Clark on Friday afternoon. The first vice-president, Charles Clark, presided over the meeting and the following program was rendered:

Devotional—Betty Braswell.

Song, "We'll All Keep Telling The Story"—Frances Armor Moreland, Betty Braswell, Mamie Blackmon, Gwendolyn Boutwell and Elizabeth Fleming.

Prayer—Elizabeth Fleming.

"Welcome Song"—Betty Braswell, Elizabeth Fleming, Fred Harper, Jr., and Robert Lassiter Whitman.

Song—Mary Jim Whitman and Frances Boutwell.

The program was concluded with prayer by Moley Johnson Boutwell.

Elaborate refreshments were served by the host. He was assisted in serving by his mother, Mrs. Gardner Clark, and his brother, James Clark.

DANLEY-OWEN WEDDING OF MUCH INTEREST—

A marriage of cordial interest was that of Miss Elizabeth Danley to Mr. J. A. Owen of our city, which was quietly solemnized in Crestview, Fla., on Wednesday, February 21st, at eight o'clock. The ceremony was performed by the Probate Judge.

Mrs. Owen is the daughter of Mr. A. J. Danley of Curtis community. She has a host of friends who will be interested in her marriage.

Mr. Owen is well known and popular here and for many years has been engaged in contracting.

He and his bride have the many good wishes of the people of Elba and vicinity. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Owen returned to Elba, where they will make their home.

Why Doctors Favor a Liquid Laxative

A doctor will tell you that the careless use of strong laxatives may do more harm than good.

Harsh laxatives often drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and even affect the liver and kidneys.

Fortunately, the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you needn't take a "double dose" a day or two later.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin gently helps the average person's bowels back to regularity. Why not try it? Some pill or tablet may be more convenient to carry. But there is little "convenience" in any cathartic which is taken so frequently, you must carry it with you, wherever you go.

Its very taste tells you Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is wholesome. A delightful taste, and delightful action. Safe for expectant mothers, and children. All druggists, ready for use, in big bottles. Member N. R. A.

MORE ABOUT TORNADO

midnight last night.

The Montgomery Chapter of the American Red Cross yesterday issued an appeal for funds and clothing for the tornado sufferers, all contributions to be taken or mailed to the Red Cross offices at 305 Montgomery Street. The appeal was made by Henry C. Mosely, chairman of the finance committee.

Red Cross representatives reported that two persons were killed in Clay County, 40 injured and 90 homes destroyed. Information as to the number of homes damaged was incomplete, but the Red Cross officials said the need for food exceeds the amount that can be raised in Clay County.

The Montgomery post of the American Legion is also receiving clothing and provisions for the tornado sufferers.

Thad Holt, director of the Alabama Service and Information Bureau, yesterday instructed Miss Gladys Martin, director of relief work in Clay County, to see that all of the 93 families reported homeless as a result of the tornado were provided with food, clothing and shelter.

Mr. Holt also dispatched two field representatives to the storm swept zone—L. E. Ford and C. Lacey—to aid in providing for the homeless, and to direct activities of volunteer work crews of the CWA in clearing the debris and aiding in advancing furnishing—foodstuffs.

The work is to be done, he said, in cooperation with the Red Cross until the Red Cross rehabilitation program can be set up. The CWA fund, said, is not a disaster relief agency.

Mrs. M. A. Owen and daughter, Mahlon, Mrs. Ora Lunsford, Miss Ruth Owen, Miss Eva Lunsford and Mr. Jack Owen spent Sunday night and Monday with relatives in Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Fleming of Brundidge spent the week-end with their son, Mr. J. C. Fleming, and Mrs. Fleming.

Charles Hayes was a visitor to Montgomery Sunday.

Miss Lallie Harper has returned to Dothan after a several days visit to her parents.

Mrs. W. P. Boyd returned from a visit to Montgomery Friday, and left Saturday for a visit to relatives in Samson.

Misses Kathleen Talbot and Billie Jamerson Troy were the attractive guests of Miss Louise Morgan during the week-end.

Mr. T. J. Whitman of Chipley, Fla., is visiting his sons, W. T. and J. D. Whitman. Mr. Whitman said the misfortune to lose his home and most of the contents by fire three weeks ago, was the insurance. The fire caught from a flue while dinner was being prepared.

Mr. and Mrs. Oswell Dowling and two little daughters, Martha Frances and Mary Oswell, visited Mrs. Dowling's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harper, near New Brockton, Sunday.

Alabama Cotton Campaign Closes With Quota Filled

AUBURN, Ala.—Final reports by county agents to Dr. L. N. Duncan, extension director, indicated that Alabama's cotton acreage this year will be reduced 1,947,967 acres by 118,173 producers. The campaign closed on February 15.

The reduction represents a slash of approximately 40 per cent in the 5,416,000 acres planted to cotton annually in Alabama from 1926 to 1932. For this reduction the government has agreed to pay Alabama producers over 10 million dollars in rental and parity payments.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration in Washington is now preparing to receive contracts from the various states and make arrangements for the disbursement to farmers of the initial rental payments.

Alabama county agents are completing final tabulations which will be forwarded to Auburn for approval by Dr. Duncan and Director Holt. This board, composed of F. W. Gist, state statistician, James D. Wilson, federal statistician, and T. A. Sims, extension official who has assisted in administering the reduction program, will inspect the tabulations to see that acreages and yields are in line with the figures compiled from past records in Alabama. Upon approval of the board, county agents will be instructed to forward the contracts to Washington.

C. A. Cobb, cotton section chief of the AAA, has announced that the rapidity with which checks will be distributed depends upon the promptness with which contracts are completed and tabulated in the various cotton states and forwarded to his office.

"It is our hope," said Mr. Cobb, "that the distribution of the first 50 million dollars of the 1934 cotton program will enable a large number of farmers to obtain with these funds in making their crop. The advantage of departing from the ordinary credit system is obvious to every cotton producer." The other installments will be made to farmers in July and December.

Levee Work Will Continue Until March 30 and Probably Go On To Completion

Work continues on the Elba levee project at a very satisfactory rate despite the fact that the quota of man power has been considerably reduced. This week the quota is about half what it was during the early part of the year.

Plans are now being worked out which, if carried to a successful conclusion, will put levee work back on a higher quota and the project will continue under full CWA direction until the last of the month or possibly the middle of April, when the CWA will be disbanded entirely.

The Elba delegation which recently spent some time in Washington on the projects, with other local citizens, to be held in conferences with Thad Holt, State CWA Administrator, and local CWA officials, has met with county officials, during the past three or four days, and it is said that there is unanimous support and co bring to a head definite plans for the levee work.

Although no official announcement has been made about the plans it is understood that in the future, probably beginning with next week, all CWA labor in the county will be concentrated on the Elba levee and the Enterprise airport. Work on county road projects which has been going on with labor will be continued with labor from the relief administration, under a new set-up which has just been ordered. Further announcement of the plans is expected within the next two or three days, and local citizens who are at work on the details are very much encouraged over the situation. It is stated that city and county officials as well as CWA and Relief Administration officials are cooperating in every way possible to get the plans adjusted for immediate approval of State officials.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The Civil Works program, the expenditure used by the administration to carry 4,000,000 unemployed through the Winter, is expected to end March 30, a full month ahead of the schedule originally announced last week by President Roosevelt.

Harry L. Hopkins, Federal emergency relief and Civil Works Administrator, announced today all Civil Works employes in cities of 5,000 or over would be dropped from Civil Works March 30 and taken over by work divisions of the State and local relief administrations April 1. A definite announcement as to final disposition of the program in rural areas where demobilization is proceeding rapidly is expected on Hopkins' return March 16 from a brief vacation in Florida.

The entire program of Civil Works was ended today in North Dakota and South Dakota and in the drouth areas of Minnesota and Kansas. Similar action may be taken shortly in drouth areas of Wisconsin.

Demobilization will continue during the next four weeks as originally planned and announced last week. It was pointed out virtually all of the 1,500,000 workers now will be on the payrolls March 30 will be in cities. The plan for demobilization calls for far more rapid disbanding of work forces in the country than in cities. This is due to the fact that farm work is beginning and with better weather most of the rural workers will find some sort of occupation.

The persons who will be transferred to work divisions will cease to be Federal employes. They will become employes of the State and local relief organizations. While on Civil Works they were classed as Federal employes and as such received the benefits of Federal insurance in event of accident or death. They were paid by Government checks through the veterans' bureau disbursing officers. Hopkins said a new plan for payment was being worked out.

Only those who can show need will be employed under the new plan. The need will be checked by the staff of local relief administrations acting under the State administrations. Only one person in a family will be given work. Only able-bodied persons will be given jobs, others being cared for by direct relief.

The Federal Emergency Relief Administration will allot funds to the various States on the basis of needs. This money will be spent by local and State administrations which also will be required to supply a share of the cost of operation.

Wages will be the local prevailing rate but not less than 30 cents per hour. Hours of labor will be 24 a week.

The new system, Hopkins said today, will make it possible for State and Federal Governments to plan their expenditures more precisely than was possible under the CWA.

The CWA, he said, was a temporary expedient, whereas the new plan is designed for long-range operations.

Work to be done under this program will be much the same as under the CWA. Hopkins estimated that 80 per cent of the CWA projects will be eligible for continuance under the new arrangement.

Alabama's Quota 16,000; Will Be Transferred

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Mar. 6—Advised last night of Director Hopkins' plan, Thad Holt, director of the Alabama CWA, said that Alabama's quota on April 1 was 16,000 employes, and that these would be transferred to the work division of the Alabama Relief Administration.

He expressed gratification also over the announcement that the work would be continued on a basis similar to that of the CWA and that employment would be available strictly on a basis of need.

The Alabama Civil Works Administration, he said, has a competent and efficient organization set up with a well qualified staff of engineers and auditors, and thousands of socially and economically worthy road construction projects are in the hopper.

It will mean that the greater part of these construction projects can be continued, he said.

Regarding the amount of local participation to be required, Mr. Holt said he had received no official notice from Washington regarding the new plan. If the plan is much the same as formerly required under the CWA, he said he did not anticipate any difficulty on this score.

Under the CWA and relief plan each county was required to contribute $2,500 a month cash, the counties making this contribution from their share of the State gasoline tax, one-half of which is divided equally among the 67 counties. Counties also were permitted to contribute road machinery, forces and other improvements as a part of local participation.

Mr. Sam R. Morgan Enters Race For Probate Judge

Mr. Sam R. Morgan, for several years treasurer of Coffee County, formally entered the race for Probate Judge on last Wednesday afternoon, having qualified before the Executive Committee. His formal announcement will be found in today's paper.

Mr. Morgan is one of the county's most widely known citizens and enters the race with assurance that hundreds of friends in every section of the county. During his term as treasurer he has served the people in a faithful and courteous manner and friends feel that no better man could be chosen for the high office of the county. He has issued the following statement to the voters of the county:

TO THE VOTERS OF COFFEE COUNTY

I have decided to entry the race for Judge of Probate of Coffee County in the coming Democratic primaries, to be held in May of this year.

I wish to say that I am not the candidate of any faction or faction, but have been solicited by voters from all occupations and communities to run.

In entering this race, I do so with full knowledge of the responsibilities that confront the office, and if elected I shall endeavor to fill the office with every consideration due them, in a courteous and business way.

I favor rigid economy in the management of all County affairs, and if elected I believe, with the cooperation of other County Officers, that we can reduce the County debts by living within the income of the County; and at the same time not impair the proper functioning of any necessary branch of its government.

If elected, I pledge that I shall not ask for a second term. This is the only pledge to be the best that the voters of the County can honor, and carries a term of six years. This being true, I WOULD BE SATISFIED WITH ONE TERM.

I respectfully solicit the votes of both ladies and gentlemen. I shall endeavor to see and talk with as many as possible during this short campaign.

Respectfully,

SAM R. MORGAN.

Ozark Credit Association Ready To Serve Farmers

The new Farm Credit Administration through the Production Credit Corporation of New Orleans has established the Ozark Production Credit Association to serve farmers of Coffee County.

All farmers are eligible for loans who are operating under the Government in the acreage reduction work and who can furnish adequate first mortgage collateral supplemented by the ordinary farm and livestock collateral.

The credit plan for farmers is designed to be permanent for farmers in producing crops and livestock and is included in the Agricultural Adjustment Act passed by Congress in 1933.

This plan of credit will doubtless be very popular with farmers in this county this year, inasmuch as it will make it possible for them to take advantage of cash prices when they are bought to make their 1934 crops.

Farmers who are interested in this type of loan may call for information and assistance in making applications at the county agent's office in the court house building at Elba.

Farmers planning to make application for these loans should have available the following information:

1. Acreage owned and rented in 1934.

2. Acreage to be cultivated in 1934.

3. Acreage and crop yields for years 1928-30-31-32 and 33.

4. Number and description of all livestock and farm equipment.

5. Landlords should be able to furnish information as to number of tenant families, total number work hands, lands to be cultivated and amounts to be furnished each tenant.

6. List of all notes, accounts, taxes, etc., owed by you for your financial statement.

Members of the Elba Chamber of Commerce were delightfully entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Brooks on Tuesday evening, when they were served with an oyster supper. FARMERS WHO CAN PAY

We recently ran across a North Carolina doctor's diagnosis of the farmer's financial troubles which is worth passing along. This was a general practitioner in an average small town who carried the accounts of many farm families on his books, usually making collections yearly when crops were marketed, as is the custom with many. On January 1 he checked up his delinquent accounts and found that in nearly every case those who had failed to pay were one-crop farmers who made no attempt to raise a variety of products. Then he looked over his paid-up list, which disclosed conditions somewhat like this:

One had a flock of pure-bred chickens, another a flock of sheep. Pathfinder to check up on previous a third had brood sows, others had dairy cows, orchards, vegetables, hay and other food and stock feed or had been able to market poultry and dairy products, had also been able to pay their doctor's bill. And by the same token had been able to pay other bills, without doubt.

Spring will soon be here. The decisions the farmer makes regarding what he will raise next season will materially affect his condition next fall. Will he profit by the experience of those who have succeeded through diversification, or will he stick to the old poverty-breeding one-crop plan?

His doctor and other creditors will be interested in this question. The farmer should take an interest in it himself.

OUR YOUNG PEOPLE

While admitting that "the maze of conflicting standards, impulses and interests" of the present day are at time bewildering to the younger generation, Miss Kathrine Lenroot of the Children's Bureau declares that on the whole children are no worse than their parents were during childhood.

She calls attention to the new agencies for steadying boys and girls of the 'teen age, mentioning the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls, each of which has a beneficial influence.

Miss Lenroot believes that more comforts of life, better educational opportunities, greater frankness in facing problems of sex, and other conditions of the present furnish a better basis for character development than was known by previous generations.

In cities and communities where statistics are available there has been a marked falling off in juvenile delinquency during the past ten years, and there has been no increase in the more serious offenses, if population be considered.

Miss Lenroot points out that each generation of adults, from the earliest times to the present, has deplored the wildness of youth, and wondered what the world was coming to. She adds that those in a position to observe actual conditions do not share the apprehensions of the alarmists.

Coming from one who views the subject from an exceptional point of vantage, the conclusions expressed by Miss Lenroot are reassuring.

PROPHETIC BUNK

About the first of every year quite a number of prophets, soothsayers, seers, or whatever they call themselves, get several columns of their prediction into print. Some folks apparently take this foolishness seriously, as superstition still has a strong hold upon a large percentage of people.

It is an occasional custom of the predictions, which inevitably results in making the alleged prophets ridiculous. Not long ago that weekly reviewed the prophecies of Belle Bart, Madam Marcia, Professor Raymond, Genevieve Kemble, Arthur Brooks and others, not one of which specific predictions came true.

We also have the crack-brained religious fanatics who pretend to read the future and see the end of the world foretold in Revelations. Many dates have been set, but the old world persists in spinning on its way, imperturbed.

The strange thing is that many persons, otherwise apparently of sound mind, worry over these gloomy prophesies which are never fulfilled.

THE GO-GETTERS

Much of the literature addressed to youth is surcharged with advice as to how to become successful in life. And by "successful" is generally meant "prominent," or "wealthy," or both. Mere comfort or happiness appears to have little place in the popular idea of success.

Particularly in picturing the glories of the business career do our success authorities and efficiency experts stress the virtues of aggressiveness, enterprise and other qualities generally comprehended by the word "push." One ideal held up to the young man is the high-powered salesman, who if he has nothing else to sell must "sell himself" to some eager employer at a princely salary, made possible by a short correspondence course to develop "personality."

But a few thoughtful persons here and there have begun to rebel against this everlasting preaching and practice of "push." They are getting weary of the ballyhoo of the boosters, and the eternal striving to get ahead of one's neighbor. It is a good sign that a few recent writers have sensed the futility of it all and have begun to tell us how ridiculous it is.

Legitimate efforts to attain a competency and comfort are most commendable, but the blatant go-getter, who subordinates all the finer things of life to mere money-grubbing and social climbing is getting tiresome. In his own shallow conceit he may imagine that he is a success, but to those who have a real appreciation of values he is a rather dismal failure.

Overgrown stop watches in the form of giant clocks which can be seen by all spectators are being used to time rodeos, football games and other sports events.

Two or three potatoes scraped finely into a quart of warm water and left standing for ten minutes will form an excellen cleanser for soiled carpets. The potatoes should be strained out before use. If the mixture is rubbed over dirty or dull places in the carpet, it will clean and brighten them.

Always use a dry cheese for grating. Otherwise the cheese will stick to the grater.

ALABAMA POWER COMPANY
Is Alabama's Largest Taxpayer

ALABAMA Power Company, by harnessing falling water, by transforming latent energy in coal into electricity and by constructing a statewide transmission and distribution system, has created taxable wealth where scarcely any existed before.

In 1914, the year the Company placed in operation its first power plant on the Coosa river, its tax bill was only $5000. In 1933 this bill had increased to $2,000,000., which amount is greater than the entire taxes paid into the State Treasury by the Tax Collectors of the 43 counties shown in black on the above state map.

If the Company should be relieved of taxes, the tax bill of every other Alabama taxpayer would have to be increased or the schools and municipal and state governments would have to operate at less cost. Yet this is the effect when privately owned electric systems are replaced by municipally owned systems which thus become non-taxpayers.

SEVENTH INSTALLMENT

He could keep her, he had a right to keep her—— Then he saw her shaking like a leaf. By a kind of violence then, blinding himself, he had married a woman who did not love him, who shrank from him now with terror and repulsion. He turned away, without a word, and began to walk to and fro in the room.

If he looked at her he might yield to the natural impulse of his own love for her; he might take her to his heart, and it would be against her will. It would be actually an act of violence rather than an embrace, for she was afraid of him; he saw it! It moved him, perhaps, more than anything else. Then the tumult of his feeling drowned even thought itself.

He crossed the room quickly. In a moment his arm was around her, his hand on her shoulder.

"Nancy," he said softly, "my wife!"

She tried to answer him, but her white lips refused to move. She could not even lift her eyes to his.

He felt it, felt that she actually shivered at his touch. He let her go, his arms fell at his sides, and he stood still, regarding her.

"I knew you didn't love me," he said at last; "I gambled on the chance that I could make you—I—God forgive me, I took advantage of you. I——" He turned away, and then at last, hurriedly, "I'm going to take you home!"

"You mean—?" her lips shook. "I mean that I don't want you to hate me. Nancy, this thing can't go on, I see it! This marriage—" he stopped, unable to go on.

"I don't want a wife who doesn't love me," he cried with sudden fury.

"Richard—" she began faintly, taking a step toward him.

He looked around at her and their eyes met. She was shaken again by the power and passion of his glance. She had never really known the man and now, in the depths of those strange, green-brown eyes of his, she saw love and passion and rage, not untouched, too, by compassion, the compassion a man might feel for a spoiled child. Nancy's face burned suddenly. She came nearer, holding up her head.

"Forgive me, Richard," she said, faintly, "and give me a little time."

His face softened wonderfully. "Nancy!" he gathered her trembling hands into his, "you don't know what love is, you child, you!" He drew a little nearer. "I wonder if you've ever really been in love in your whole life?"

She winced with such a tremor of feeling that the red blood mounted from her bosom to her throat.

"I've married you," she said in a low voice, "I'll try to do my best—I will truly, if you'll give me a little time, Richard."

"And you take no thought of me?" He laughed a strangely bitter laugh. "You've married me and you forget I'm a man like other men—I have feelings, too, Nancy; I'm not a stone—and you can feel how I love you!"

"Oh!" she gasped. "I—I was wrong to do it!" I—you love me, and I——" She wrenched one hand free and, reaching back behind her, caught at the edge of a heavy table and leaned against it, weakly.

Her agony reached through even his passionate emotion. She had recoiled from him with such terror that it struck him like a blow. He let her hands drop with a gesture of passionate rage.

"I don't want a wife who doesn't love me!" he cried with sudden fury. The moment was primal; the tornado of his passion and his revulsion tore down to his very heart.

She shrank before it, clinging—white-faced—to the table against which she leaned.

He did not heed it. "I'm going to take you home. You——" he stopped again, unable to go on, then mastering himself—"you're free—if you will, you can keep this marriage secret—it's no marriage except in name. I'll take you home now—tonight!"

She caught her breath, staring at him wildly, but, instead of relief, she felt the sting of his rejection.

"You mean—?" her stiff lips refused to frame the words in her mind.

"I mean I don't want a woman who cant love me, that's what I mean!" he flung back at her like a challenge.

She took it as such and faced him, quivering from head to foot.

"I—I didn't pretend I did!" she said very low, her lips twitching painfully with the effort to force speech—"I—I didn't mean to cheat you—I told you—I pledged myself, I've kept that pledge—I've married you."

"Oh, have you?" he mocked.

He was shaking with fury. All the pent-up passion and misery of the love he was crushing down to spare her broke loose in his anger. He caught one of her hands in his again and kissed it passionately, then, when he felt it lie there, unresisting, as if she dared not take it away, he flung it from him.

"I'm going to take you home—there's a night train, or rather a morning one, at half-past two. We will go on it. Meanwhile—" he swept the space about them with his gesture of disdainful courtesy—"these rooms are yours. Lie down and rest, I'll have you called in time. I'm going out—good night until—the train goes."

She did not answer; she stood quite still, watching him with startled eyes. She only half understood; she felt as if a great hot whirlwind had blown past her thru the rooms and scorched her. She only half glimpsed the dsiappointment, the wrath, the mortification he felt.

Then, suddenly, he returned. He flung himself on one knee beside her chair; she felt his hands, hot and shaking, close on hers, and she lifted her eyes and met the passionate pain in his.

"Listen to me, Nancy," his voice, passionate still, had softened, it was shaken now by a new emotion, a deeper one, his tenderness for her. Not even anger could drive it out when he looked at her bowed head. "I love you—never dream but that I love you. But I won't take a wife who shrinks from me—like a pestilence! I'm setting you free. You can even say nothing of this marriage, if you will. I've made no announcement. I'll make none without your sanction. I've married you—I'm going to try to win you now. When you can come back to me with love in your heart—then, Nancy, my heart is waiting for that day—until then——" He caught her hands and kissed them, pressing them against his breast.

She felt his passionate lips upon her two hands, she felt the tremor that ran through him, and then—almost as quickly as it reached her—he was gone. She was alone in the strange room, alone and free—and yet not free!

When the train moved out of the station, Nancy knew that it was already morning. Richard had had her sleeping-berth made up and ordered her to lie down and rest, with the detached tone of a professional adviser.

A sensation of relief shot thru her, she drew her breath deeply, and then, suddenly, abruptly, she felt the hard circle of the wedding-ring on her finger. She stared at it curiously, abhorrently. She was not even now quite clear as to what had happened. She had gone to Richard openly, brazenly, begging help and pledging herself, she had married him and he——?. It seemed to her that he must scorn her as tremendously as he seemed to love her. And though she did not love him, it shook her terribly—she had married him.

Her thoughts did not come in sequence; she had glimpses of outside things, and swift, poignant visions—of her father—looking gray and broken—and her mother, of Roddy delivered from jail, of Angie Fuller's spaniel eyes, and of Page Roemer. The thought of him was like a sword-thrust, it made her cringe back and cover her face with her shaking hands. Would she have to tell him? She could not—she was sure that she could not.

"She's mine!" he thought cruelly. "She's mine—I'll never let her go!"

The sun was rising when she got up and dressed in a swift, absent-minded way. She did not know where Richard had gone. He had been merciful; he had left her alone. She was very pale when he came and, in his authoritative way, made her go into the dining-car.

"You can't starve yourself," he said grimly, and added in an undertone: "don't hate me so much you can't eat, Nancy!"

She raised her eyes suddenly and looked full at him for the first time. She was shocked at the change in him in one night. He looked old. He was ten years older than she was, five years older than Page—he might be fifty now in the crude light of the swaying train. He was looking at her and their glances met, met with a shock of mutual feeling. He put his hand out involuntarily and took hers and felt it icy cold.

"You poor child!" he exclaimed softly.

Sitting opposite her in the dining car, with the little white-covered table between them he had another change of heart. He could not give her up! "She's mine!" he thought cruelly; "she's mine—I'll never let her go!" and then he was ashamed.

"Eat something, Nancy," he urged, "you've got to."

She tried, choking down her food, but her hands shook.

He saw it, saw that she would not—or could not—even look at him now, and choked down his own food and took her back to her place in the sleeper, and left her to herself.

"I think you want to be alone," he said.

She assented without words and they made the rest of the journey apart.

It was late afternoon when they finally got home. There were only a few people at the station and Richard and Nancy walked up the street unmolested. They did not speak until they reached his gate and Richard stopped there.

"Won't you come in, Nancy?"

His very tone appealed. For an instant his pride broke, there was hunger and longing in his voice. She gasped.

"I—I'd like to go home first—I—what do you mean, Richard?"

He gave her a tense look. "I'm human—God, I'm human!" he said "you know what I mean!"

She hung her head, she did not know what to do, but—unconsciously she wrung her hands.

"Can I come home with you now?" Richard pleaded, "and see your father and mother?—or am I to stay here?"

"Oh, I must go!" she gasped. "I must!"

"Go? As you will, Nancy; see—I keep my faith," and he stepped back aside his own gate and stood there, waiting to watch her.

She felt his eyes, gave one glance back, whitened to her lips and fled.

Richard was a proud man and he reddened under his tan. He had seen the agony in her face when she shivered at his touch, she, his wife—incredible! Then the flame of passion leaped up again. "She's mine—mine!"

He was startled at a voice.

"Richard, I've been waiting ever so long for you!"

It was Helena Haddon, standing at his door.

He was taken aback without reason. It was no unusual thing for Helena to come. He was the Haddon's physician and she came—sometimes with bald excuses, sometimes in real need of something to quiet her nerves, but today—!

"What's the trouble?" he asked, striving to be natural. "Nerves again, Helena?"

"Oh, it's everything!" she smiled at him. "It's nerves and King—and the spring weather."

"Principally the spring weather, I fancy," he said reassuringly, opening the door for her.

He meant to take her into his office, but she walked straight into the library. He saw her mood and he had begun sometimes to fear its consequences; today he was thinking hard: "At least I don't have to tell her now!"

"I hope you haven't got the same old headache, Helena?"

"No, it's not my headache," Helena laughed, looking around at him, opening her green eyes wide and laughing at him. "I see there's been a visitor here before me," she added mockingly.

Fascinating Facts of NATURE

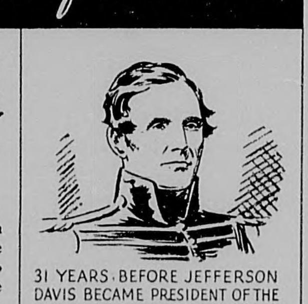
This is "caliche", the form in which Chilean Natural Nitrate was created. From this ore two types of Chilean Natural Nitrate are refined—Old Style and granulated Champion Brand. Both are Nature's products, created in the ground to help you produce more profitable crops.



31 YEARS BEFORE JEFFERSON DAVIS BECAME PRESIDENT OF THE SOUTHERN CONFEDERACY (1861) CHILEAN NITRATE WAS FIRST USED TO FERTILIZE SOUTHERN CROPS (1830) "JEFF" DAVIS WAS A YOUNG ARMY OFFICER IN THOSE DAYS.

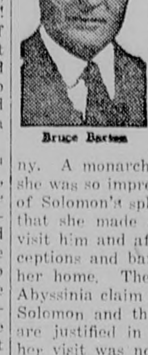
THE BOOK

. . . . . the first line of which reads, "The Holy Bible," and which contains Four Great Treasures . . . .

by BRUCE BARTON

PROVERBS, POEMS AND PROPHETS

TEN fairly representative people were asked, "What do you know about Solomon?" Four of the ten answered: "Nothing." Other answers were: He had two thousand wives; he was the husband of the Queen of Sheba; he built Solomon's Temple; he was the wisest man that ever lived.



Bruce Barton

The statistise regarding Solomon's marriages as given in the Book of Kings are "seven hundred wives, princesses, and three hundred concubines." The Queeen of Sheba was not officially among this distinguished company. A monarch in her own right, she was so impressed by the stories of Solomon's splendor and wisdom that she made a long journey to visit him and after a series of receptions and banquets returned to her home. The present kings of Abyssinia claim their descent from Solomon and this queen. If they are justified in their proud boast her visit was not wholly Platonic. It may have been true of her, as she said of Solomon that "the half has not been told." All that we know certainly is that she never appears in the Bible again.

Solomon did build the temple and it remained the pride and glory of Jerusalem until the destruction of the city by the Babylonians in 586 B. C. But the most enduring monuments left by this great ruler were not in stone or bronze, but in words—The Proverbs, a rich mine of wisdom wherein every nugget is solid gold. One can only marvel after reading them how a man so wise in other ways could have been so unwise about women.

He made a fine start as king. The Lord appeared one night in a dream, asking him to name his heart's desire, and Solomon answered:

Thou hast made thy servant king instead of David my father: and I am but a little child: I know not how to go out or come in. . . .

Give therefore thy servant an understanding heart to judge thy people, that I may discern between good and bad: for who is able to judge this thy so great a people?

To which the Lord replied:

Because this was in thine heart, and thou hast not asked riches, wealth or honour, nor the life of thine enemies, neither yet hast asked long life; but hast asked wisdom and knowledge for thyself, that thou mayest judge my people, over whom I have made thee king:

Wisdom and knowledge is granted unto thee; and I will give thee riches, and wealth, and honour, such as none of the kings have had that have been before thee, neither shall any after thee have the like.

Without this wise choice on the part of Solomon we probably never should have had the Proverbs; but something more than inspired knowledge went into them. They bear evidence of comprehensive experience with every phase of human nature and conduct. Some of them, as might be imagined from Solomon's own record, contain warnings against the unrighteous woman.

FARMER JONES AND HIS COW PEN

By JUDGE W. M. BRUNSON

A poor farmer is to be pitied, and most of us are as poor as giving dirt, but I have a letter from a man who convinces me that he is beyond being poor. He wants to fix a hot bed but says that he has only canvas and a window sash to cover it with. He wants to know how he can have a hot bed without any expense at all, and the further says that a number of his neighbors want the same information. Since thinking about it I'm convinced that there are a great number of families who are not able to buy any equipment at all and that is why I'm giving you this new plan for making a hot bed. Select a spot on hand and which slopes toward the south and which is well fenced. Dig a hole about three feet wide from north to south and make it as long east and west as you want it. This hole should be about two feet deep, with the south side about three inches deeper than the north side. The south wall should be sloping so the sun can shine on all parts of the bottom, and it might be well to slope the ends, too, for early sun and the late sun. Please remember the hole must be dug deep enough for you to get the benefit of the warm of the earth and be sure not to dig the dirt until you are ready to plant your seeds. Dig a trench around the side so rain water will not run or seep into your hole and fix a lid that will keep the hot bed as tightly as possible. The lid must fit tight if you are to get the best results. Then get some boxes that will fit on the bed, leaving a space about 18 inches square in the middle. These boxes can be built from slabs or waste lumber and should not be more than four inches deep. Fill these boxes with fine soil and then plant your seeds in these boxes. If you are not able to get up the lumber and nails for these boxes you can put your soil in the bed and use sticks to divide it up for the different seeds. When it is warm and the sun is shining you can remove the lid and the warmth of the sun will cause your seeds to sprout, but when it is cold you must keep the lid on and the bed should be kept on every night until the weather gets warm. If you have only a small amount of seed to sprout, keep the bed warm with hot rocks. It would be best to set sure two large rocks weighing about fifty pounds each and place them in your fire place for immediate use. Take the hot rocks and place it in the space left in the center of your bed and cover it with a small amount of dirt and the dirt should be damp or wet so a steam will be created. Then place your boxes on the bed and see that all crevices are closed. Pile dirt

Attorney General Rules On Legal Voting Age

Answering in the negative an inquiry received from Probate Judge Alex Brantley of Troy as to whether a person now registered but who will not be 21 years old until August of this year can vote in the primaries to be held in Alabama May 1 and June 5, respectively, the office of Atty. Gen. Knight held in an opinion announced yesterday that under the State primary law, to vote in a primary election a person must be 21 years of age.

If, in accordance with this opinion, it was learned, a person who has registered becomes 21 before the first primary, he or she can vote in that election, and if they do not vote they can be required prior to the holding of that election, but have reached it prior to the second primary, then they may vote in the second primary.

Birmingham Fire Loss Estimated At $3,000,000; Many Firemen and Others Injured

BIRMINGHAM, March 12.—The city's crippled and weary fire department stood guard over the smouldering ruins of the major portion of a block in the heart of the business district, destroyed Saturday afternoon and night in flames which caused damage estimated at $3,000,000.

Thirty-five persons, 33 of them firemen, were still in hospitals as a result of the blaze, which started from defective wiring in the false basement of Loveman, Joseph and Loeb, one of the city's largest and finest department stores.

Fire Chief R. O. Hargrove joined the list of hospital victims, suffering from smoke in his eyes and lungs, early Sunday after the fire had been definitely placed under control.

None of the injured were considered in serious condition, although physicians warned authorities that they must guard against complications which might result from their 10-hour fight in a bitter wind which fanned the flames and made their task doubly difficult.

Twenty-seven persons, including two civilians, were dismissed from hospitals Sunday.

Loveman, Joseph and Loeb, a leading store here for more than 40 years, today was a mass of ruins. Loss was estimated at $2,000,000 by Joseph H. Loveman, president and general manager of the concern. Mr. Loveman said negotiations had already begun for leasing temporary quarters, and starting business anew.

The store's 600 employes will be given jobs, so far as is possible, in the new establishment, he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dowling and little daughter, Melba, arrived from Washington, D. C., Thursday night. Mr. Dowling is now stationed there for the past nine months. He will leave next week for Norfolk, Va., where he will receive his training in the U. S. Navy. Mrs. Rhodes and little daughter will remain in Elba.

A few days ago notice was published that a Farm-Debt Adjustment committee had been appointed for Coffee County. This committee is composed of the following: Noah J. Prestwood, Jesse Brown, J. I. Pierce, J. B. Martin and W. L. Fleming.

The notice is to inform the farmers of Coffee County that this committee met March 10, elected the following members: W. L. Fleming, chairman; Jesse Brown, vice-chairman, and J. I. Pierce, secretary, and are now ready to receive applications for hearings.

Volunteer committees like this and other committees are organized to provide a means, in distressed farm debt cases, of bringing farm debtors and their creditors together in an effort to solve their problems.

The solution generally means a rearrangement of the farmer's indebtedness in some manner which enables him to continue farming and to retain his property. Such a rearrangement should also provide for an equitable distribution among creditors of the current income available to pay debts. The primary objective, of course, is to render a social and economic justice to both debtor and creditor in adjusting unbearable farm debt burdens."

The organization of this kind is new insofar as this county is concerned, but based on reports from other sections of the country where such organizations have been functioning, it is believed that considerable good can be obtained from our county organization in this matter of farm debt adjustment.

Farmers who have farm debt burdens and feel that some adjustment should be made are invited to file an application for hearing before the committee. These applications may be made out at the County Agent's office.

Ringdorf Baby Passes In LaFayette Wednesday

Elba people were shocked and deeply grieved Wednesday afternoon when a message was received announcing the passing of Franklin Frazer Ringdorf, the eight-month-old son of Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Ringdorf, which sad event occurred at the home of grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Frazer, in LaFayette, about noon Wednesday.

Dr. and Mrs. Ringsdorf and children went to LaFayette Saturday for a visit with relatives. Dr. Ringsdorf returned to Elba Monday and Tuesday received a message that the baby was ill. Late Tuesday afternoon he received another message that the baby's condition was serious and immediately left for LaFayette, accompanied by his brother, Mrs. Lillian Ringsdorf.

In the message received Wednesday afternoon announcing the death of the baby it was stated that funeral services would be held at LaFayette Thursday morning and that the body would be brought to Elba for interment. At the time of going to press the exact hour of arrival had not been determined, but it will probably be mid-afternoon.

The Ringsdorfs have the sympathy of the entire town in their bereavement.

A FINE PLAY—The home talent play entitled "Silas Smidge From Turnip Ridge," staged at the school auditorium last Friday night under the auspices of the P.-T. A., was undoubtedly one of the very best from every viewpoint that I ever attended. It was first given on February 28, at which time a large audience was on delighted with its presentation that a number of requests were made for the play's repetition. Inasmuch as the conditions interfered with the attendance at the second performance but those who did go were loud in their praise of it and were convinced that no exaggeration had been made by those who witnessed it the first time.

To say that certain members of the cast stood out would be doing an injustice to the others, as all of them perform their respective parts. They behaved more like professional than amateurs. There was no noticeable forgetting of lines and everything moved along smoothly throughout the three acts.

Miss Madge Page as "Neurasthenia Van Tromp," a stagestruck hired girl, was as good as usual, which is equivalent to saying "hot stuff," and her shy way of side-stepping the awkward wooing of Harold English, as "Oswald Gorlick," clerk in a grocery store, was ludicrous indeed. Mrs. J. O. English played the part of "Miss Simplicity McPheeters," prim old maid, to perfection. Sara Mac Mathis captivated the audience with her portrayal of "Judy," an orphan waif, and her sacrificial love affair with the dignified young minister, "Ralph Thornhill," otherwise known as Jeff Carnley, was all that could have been desired by the most sentimentally inclined.

Mrs. Sam Sawyer played the part of "Florence McPheeters," aristocratic daughter of the village Shylock, to perfection and Mrs. Wesley Harris, as Mrs. Peas, the village postmistress, reminded one of the proverbial cricket. She knew all that was going on before it happened and did not fail to spread it. Almon Strain as "Thaddeus McPheeters," was a real Shylock. It was hard for those of us who know the generous station agent to intimately to realize that he could be so stingy and cold-hearted. His treatment of "Bon Bruce," a fine young farmer who had mortgaged his farm to Thaddeus, was cruel to the extreme. Landey Cureton was especially good in the farmer part.

"Enid Thornhill," the minister's sister and secret wife of the gangster, "Wayne Kendall," was well played by Miss Mary Page. H. C. Bryan, as "Wayne Kendall," black sheep, was as realistic as a modern gangster that he sent shivers down the spines of the whole audience. Mrs. Lillian Ringsdorf was right at home in the role of the aristocratic society matron, "Miss Maud Armitage," and her appearance at the opportune time to clear up the social standing of her niece, "Judy," was a happy finale. Dr. W. M. Ringsdorf outdid himself as "Silas Smidge, From Turnip Ridge, County Clay in Iowa, by-gosh." When better amateur acting is to be done we will have to get Doc to do it.

CURTIS FACULTY HONORED AT LOVELY DINNER—

The curtis faculty was the inspiration for a lovely dinner party last Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Young in the Curtis community.

A profusion of early Spring flowers was used in decorations. A delicious three-course dinner was served. Covers were laid for Superintendent Rowe Watson, Mr. P. T. Walden, Misses Lucile Campbell, Hazel Grimes, Louise Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kendrick, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Fountain Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Odell Cotney, Mr. and Mrs. Grafton Young and Mr. Buck Campbell.

Following the dinner hour, a number of popular songs were sung by the entire party and games were enjoyed until a late hour.—Cont.

Mrs. Gordon Prescott and Mrs. Wesley Harris visited Mrs. Prescott's sister, Mrs. A. A. Owen, in Opp Monday. While there Mrs. Owen's home caught fire but the blaze was extinguished before serious damage was done.

Fire Damages Home Of C. O. Rhodes In W. Elba

The house occupied by C. O. Rhodes and owned by Mrs. W. H. Coston, located on the Elba-Opp highway in West Elba, was considerably damaged by a fire Monday forenoon, which caught from a chimney. None of the occupants, according to report, knew of the blaze until after the alarm had been turned in. Mr. Rhodes hurried home at this time from the depot, and climbing to the roof with a garden hose, checked the flames somewhat until the arrival of the fire department. Hose from the nearby Cooper Lumber Company plant was also used to good advantage.

The fire department responded as promptly as possible and the fire was confined to the roof, a considerable portion of which was burned off. Some of the ceiling in the center of the house was also burned. Most of the household goods were removed from the house, but considerable damage from water resulted. It is reported that no insurance was carried on either goods or building.

JUDGE J. A. CARNLEY

Candidate For Re-Election, Running For Nomination In Democratic Primary On May 1st, 1934

On My Record Of Service I Am Asking For Your Support

"Let every man prove his own work, then shall he have rejoicing in himself alone, and not in another."—Bible.

A BIT OF COFFEE COUNTY HISTORY, By JUDGE J. A. CARNLEY

NOTE: For eleven years I have been writing some Coffee County history. I have used the nine Probate Judges' administrations, beginning with Judge James Claxton and continuing with each successive Probate Judge, namely, Judge P. D. Costello, Judge B. W. Starke, Judge B. M. Weeks, Judge Daniel Gillis, Judge B. M. Stevens, Judge F. M. Rushing, Judge S. N. Rowe, and Judge J. A. Carnley. This is the first publication of the present incumbent's administration, which began January 15, 1923.

OCCUPATIONS: Coffee County has to this date had nine Probate Judges. Of these four were lawyers, namely, P. D. Costello, B. W. Starke, B. M. Stevens, and J. A. Carnley. S. N. Rowe, was a merchant, F. M. Rushing was a physician, B. M. Weeks was a farmer, Daniel Gillis was a teacher, and James Claxton's occupation is not known to me. I have been unable to ascertain his business.

TAXATION VALUES: Coffee County had the highest tax valuation in 1921, then reaching the peak of $10,500,000.00. Since the year of 1922, the last year of Judge S. N. Rowe's administration, tax valuations for assessment of real and personal property, including automobiles, have decreased $3,000,000.00 This reduction has been gradually growing smaller each succesive year so that the year of 1933 is approximately $7,500,000.00. Including district and County school taxes, State and County taxes, this gives a reduction of $63,000.00 taxes each year, or a total of $378,000.00 in six years.

HIGHEST JUMP IN 1921: Coffee County taxpayers in 1921 were earnestly protesting the highest taxes in the history of the County. Then recent jumps in tax valuations of real and personal properties more than doubled in many cases. This unfair assessment was bitterly resented and opposed. While efforts were being made to secure reductions, the Tax Records disappeared, were destroyed, stolen or something, and no one has yet been able to tell the story. It is a part of our history that gives embarrassment and humiliation to the good citizens of the County and an occurrence which we deplore. This did not reduce taxes. It resulted in extra burdens and hardships. There was a generall revolt in politics, which resulted in a change of administration.

COUNTY INDEBTEDNESS IN 1923: When I began my administration in 1923 there was a floating indebtedness of $76,000.00, a past due bonded debt of $10,000.00 and a $100.000.00 bonded debt for
